

Governor Pleased With Homesteading On Garden Island

Returns From Tour of Inspection Confident That Small Farming Has Great Future In Hawaii

HANDLING OF KAPAA LANDS MODEL, HE SAYS

If Same Class of Men Can Be Placed On Other Tracts, Success Is Assured, Is Believed

The most enthusiastic man in Hawaii today over homesteading in the islands is Governor McCarthy, who returned yesterday from a tour of inspection of the government lands of Kauai.

It was the Governor's visit to the Kapa'a homesteads that made him entirely confident of the ultimate success of homesteading, of which he has always been an advocate.

"I was never so delighted with anything in my life as I was with what I saw at Kapa'a," said the Governor yesterday afternoon. "Why, I was utterly astonished at what those homesteaders have accomplished. What I saw there has thoroughly convinced me that all that is needed to make homesteading successful in Hawaii is to get a class of homesteaders like those who have settled on the lands at Kapa'a."

"I was at Kapa'a two years ago, and there was virtually nothing there. Today there is a beautiful little settlement, with fine cane lands excellently cultivated and assuring the homesteaders not only of fine homes for themselves but of good financial returns."

"There are no camps such as one finds on the plantations elsewhere throughout the islands. Instead the homesteaders have built themselves beautiful bungalows that are real homes. And they have done wonders with the land. Many of them have little tractors with which they do all the heavy work of cultivation."

Depends on the Man
"Some of the homesteaders get advances of $65 an acre from the plantations, others get advances of $300. And in many cases the $300 advance has been more successful than those who get $300 an acre advance. It all depends upon the man, you see."

"I have promised to do all I can for the homesteaders of Hawaii; it is up to the homesteaders to back me up by doing all they can for themselves. If I can get men on the other public lands of the territory like those on the Kapa'a lands, I shall be satisfied and there will be no question in my mind as to the success of homesteading in Hawaii."

The Governor visited all parts of the Garden Island during his trip, going over virtually all of the government lands, and what he saw taught him more, he says, than he ever knew before about lands and about farming. It also greatly raised his hopes and gave him the germ of big ideas for the future.

Among other lands which he visited were those of Kuke, high up above the lowlands. The Kuke lands belong to the government but the lease on them does not expire until 1920. The Governor, however, wanted to see them so that when any question concerning them comes up in the future, he will have a picture in his mind of the lands and know better how to act.

Waimea Homesteads
Governor McCarthy stopped at Waimea and interviewed some of the homesteaders there and made arrangements for the sale at public auction of the homestead lands along the beach there on August 3. Some of the lands are occupied by Hawaiians who have lived there so long, he said, that they have perfect title rights and their homesteads will not be put up at auction. There are other cases where the occupants claim title but were unable to find their deeds. These lands will be withheld to give the occupants opportunity to prove title. In one case, the Governor said, a Hawaiian after three months succeeded in finding his deed which dated back to the time of Kamehameha III.

The Waimea Canyon, which the Governor visited for the first time, excited his enthusiasm. "I have seen the Grand Canyon of the Colorado," he said while it is bigger and grander, it is not by any means as beautiful or colorful as Waimea Canyon. I went there with the idea that the Waimea Canyon was just a gulch, a particularly big gulch, perhaps and nothing more. I was as astonished when I saw what it is like, the most beautiful place in the world."

"I rode seven miles up it in a big automobile, something that I never imagined could be done. I found up more than 3000 feet a beautiful summer resort where the people of this Territory can go and camp when they need a change of climate."

To Extend Embankment
Reverting to the subject of the Waimea homesteads, the Governor said that the money realized from their sale is to go toward the extension of the Waimea embankment. A great deal of money has already been spent on that project, but it is wasted without further expenditure, for as it is now, in times of high water the water cuts in behind the embankment and floods the low land. It is proposed to extend the embankment up to the high bluff beyond, thereby preventing such overflows. Then it will be possible to dredge out and reclaim the low lands.

Governor McCarthy considers it an extremely unfortunate that the last regular session of the legislature cut down materially the appropriation for water gauging, as it is necessary to find out what supply of water is available in order to decide what can be done with the land. He proposes to ask the next legislature to make adequate provision for this work.

There is an immense amount of water running to waste on Kauai, says the Governor, which should be put to work

PLANTATIONS COME OVER TO FACTORS

Hackfeld Agencies Being Transferred Rapidly As Meetings To Vote Changes Are Held

Lihue plantation stockholders met at the offices of the American Factors Co., Ltd., yesterday morning and voted to authorize the directors to transfer their agency from Hackfeld & Co. to the new corporation. It developed that Lihue had no contract with Hackfeld at all, but, owing to the close relationship existing between the two corporations in the glorious "used-to-be," had rocked along merrily with only a verbal understanding. There will be a signed contract with the American Factors.

In the afternoon Kekaha Sugar Company stockholders met and followed suit. Waimea Sugar Company, which merely had a selling agency agreement with Hackfeld, took the same course, voting that its directors sign up with the new corporation.

Today a meeting of Maake Sugar Company will be held. This corporation also had only a selling agency understanding with Hackfeld, and this will in all likelihood, be transferred to the new corporation. Hackfeld & Co. were supposed to own one share over a control in Maake, but under the terms of agreement at the time of the transfer of the stock, that control has never amounted to much.

George Wilcox, owner of Grove Farm, was asked to sign up with the new corporation but refused. He explained afterward that he was thoroughly in accord with the reorganization of Hackfeld, but that neither Hackfeld nor anybody else had ever required him to sign an agency contract, and he was too old to start in now. It was evident that he preferred working with the new corporation on the old lines which he had followed for many years. The matter was passed over to today.

GOVERNMENT TO CONTROL TURBINE ENGINE INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, July 24—(Official Press)—The government has assumed full control of the turbine engine industry. The war industry board will supervise all orders for turbine engines of more than 700 horsepower.

but to do this will require much data not now available.

Water Going To Waste

There is an immense amount of water in the great swamp of the high tide land of the island which the Government believes can be made available for irrigation. The main question is that of expense. Nothing can be done, however, he says, until complete data is available as to quantity. Governor McCarthy thinks that the water from this great swamp and from the many streams that flow out of it and run to waste in the sea could easily be drawn into a great ditch that could be constructed and carried either to government lands on the north and east side of Hanalei or to those on the other side, as might seem more desirable and practicable. Thousands of acres of land could thus be made available for homesteading, he says.

Among other homesteads visited by the Governor and Land Commissioner or Kuykendall, who accompanied him on his trip, were the Kuke and the Waimea. This, it will be remembered, are small homesteads, of five or six acres, opened up several years ago to provide homes for plantation laborers. Too small for a family to make a living off of, they nevertheless admirably serve the purpose for which they were thrown open, the Governor says, and demonstrate that it is possible to make plantation labor comfortable and contented.

Other Tracts Visited

The Governor visited the Anahola lands yesterday. He says that while much of this tract is rocky and perhaps unsuitable for homesteading, there is much of it that can and should be homesteaded.

The Waialua lands were also visited. The Governor says that an immense amount of water is running to waste from the Waialua river, water which can be made available but at considerable expense. The level is too low at the Waialua falls to take the water from the river, but he believes that it would be possible to take it higher up.

It is Governor McCarthy's purpose to visit all the government lands in the Territory in order that he may have first hand personal knowledge of them when questions regarding their disposition arise. It was his intention to go to Hawaii next week, but this he will be unable to do on account of the necessity of preparing the annual report to the secretary of the Interior. He hopes that this will not occupy him much more than a week, after all the reports of the various department heads are in, and then he will be able to make the visit to the Big Island. He says he expects to be able to complete his survey of the government lands of that island in about four weeks after which he will visit Maui for a similar purpose.

HILO PLANS FOR NEEDY RELATIVES

Board of Trade Wants Quick Action To Prevent Suffering Among Families of Soldiers

Hilo's plan for looking after dependent relatives of guardians called into the nation's service, some report of which has been published in The Advertiser, is a fairly ambitious one. The Tribune, of the Crescent City, gives the following details of the meeting of the Hilo board of trade at which the matter was considered. The Tribune's report is:

"By unanimous vote of those present at the board of trade meeting held yesterday, (Friday) it was decided something must be done at once to take care of the wives and children of drafted men. A resolution introduced by H. H. Mariner was adopted to the following effect:

"The Board of Trade of Hilo requests Senator S. L. Desha and Mr. John T. Moir, both now in Honolulu, to interview Governor McCarthy and ask him to assist in setting aside a piece of land at Waialua upon which a temporary home for wives and dependent children of men in the United States service, both Army and Navy, can be taken care of. Also the Governor is requested to utilize some portion of his contingent fund of $75,000 to aid in the establishment of the home. That Messrs Moir and Desha should be authorized to solicit subscriptions was also embodied in the resolution."

H. L. Ross Outlines Plan

The whole matter was brought to the attention of the board by G. H. Vickers, president. The president pointed out that Homer L. Ross, at a previous meeting, had outlined briefly a scheme whereby he thought something might be done to establish a home of some sort for orphans and others left destitute, or at least in precarious circumstances, with the departure of their fathers. He declared that there would be many other cases and that his idea was to have some kind of an institution in which the wives and children of the men now with the colors should feel safe. Mr. Ross did not go into details, but he hinted at circumstances that might arise where women were left alone in the homes they have been occupying with their husbands up till the time of the draft.

Delays Inevitable

"The speaker pointed out that although the government would pay salaries to the men in the army and allowances to the women and children left behind, it would take time to get things running smoothly and that it might mean from two to three months until the families could get the money. As far as the Home Service Committee in East Hawaii knows of seven wives who are left behind. There are eighty-six children who must be classed as dependents through the fact that their fathers, brothers, uncles and other male relatives, who have been supporting them for years past, have been taken by the draft."

Mr. Ross said that he had talked with C. H. Will, the well known contractor and builder, and that the latter had offered to draw up specifications and plans, do all the figuring, purchase the necessary materials and construct a building where needed at actual cost with ten percent allowed for overhead charges. A rough estimate made by Will showed that he thought the building required could be erected for about $2000.

"Mr. Will spoke to the meeting and said that he would not be looking for any profit whatsoever and added, privately afterwards, that he felt sure that he could come down a bit in the price, as he was certain that he could obtain the necessary materials at cost from the firms that handle the things required."

Waialua Settlement

"Mrs. W. H. Smith spoke briefly on the subject of having the Waialua Social Settlement take up the task of caring for the dependents in temporary houses near the headquarters of the hall. She said that the children could attend the kindergarten while the mothers did their home work."

"D. McH. Forbes spoke on the Waialua Settlement idea and said that the Association might be able to do something. Personally, Mr. Forbes declared that he would do all possible to help, but he pointed out that the Social Settlement exchequer was empty and that assistance would be needed."

"Mr. Forbes also pointed out that the plantations were doing all possible for the families of the drafted men. He declared that the wives could walk into the plantation stores and there obtain credit in the way of food and clothing to a reasonable amount each month."

"It was after some discussion that the motion of H. H. Mariner was put and carried. President Vickers will get into communication with Senator Desha and Mr. John T. Moir and will advise the two Hilo men of the action taken by the board of trade."

DOCTOR RAYMOND MAKES PUBLIC HIS CAMPAIGN ISSUES

Will Run For Democratic Nomination For Delegate On Public Land Question, He Says

COMMISSIONER MUST BE FEDERAL APPOINTEE

Dr. J. H. Raymond will begin his active campaign for the Democratic nomination for delegate to congress on August 12 at Hilo, according to a statement made by him yesterday. The doctor is visiting Honolulu for the general purpose of looking around and perhaps finding out, if he can, what is making "Link" McCardless keep so unusually quiet.

The issue upon which Doctor Raymond will make his campaign will be lands, he said. "This is going to be the only issue in this campaign, he continued. "We have got to work out an adequate planned policy for this Territory; we've got to have genuine homesteading, and in order to have it we've got to have a settled land policy that is fair to everybody concerned."

Federalize Land Office

"The only way to handle the public lands of this Territory, in my opinion, is to federalize the land office. The land commissioner should not be an appointee of the Governor, subject to pressure and influence on every hand. He should be an appointee of the President, who can do what he thinks right without fear of the refusal of the local legislature to confirm his appointment. That's what's been the main trouble with the public land question in Hawaii in the past. The land commissioner's office is political. He has to please the members of the legislature and he can't expect to hold his job. But if his commission bore the signature of Woodrow Wilson, it would be different. Then he would be independent and could do what he thought the right thing without fear of consequences."

"We must have a complete and thorough survey of the public lands of the Territory, not only of the cane lands but also of the grazing lands, lands which are capable of being homesteaded. What I want to see is the appointment of a commissioner, consisting of the land commissioner and two other members, who will handle the public lands of the Territory. It is this which I am going to make the issue in the coming campaign."

Too Much Home Rule

Doctor Raymond expressed small confidence in Delegate Kuhio's land policy. "Kuhio talks of home rule, he said. "That's just what's the trouble with Hawaii today. We have too much home rule. What we want is not home rule but home protection. We don't want rule of any kind. What I propose as the proper method of handling the public lands is not intended to take authority away from the people; it's just the opposite. Federalization of the land office is not opposed to genuine home rule, but it is also home protection, and that's what we need."

Asked as to what he expected L. L. McCardless to do, Doctor Raymond said he had heard nothing but supposed of course Link intended to run as usual. "Link is like Tennyson's hawk, you know, that runs on forever."

Doctor Raymond expressed the belief that there is no other issue involved in the campaign than the public land question. "Prohibition seems to be pretty well taken care of already," he said.

SCRIPTURAL TABLEAUX PRESENTED AT LIHUE

The Lihue Union Church conducted a very interesting and unique Scripture tableaux service at the Tip Top theater, Lihue, on Sunday evening last, which was received with marked favor by the general public of that enterprising and progressive community, writes a correspondent of The Advertiser.

A dozen or so tableaux representations of principal incidents in the life of Christ furnished the substance of the service, while the intervals between were filled in with appropriate scripture readings and hymns relative to the scenes. Many of the scenes were large, with as many as twenty-five or thirty characters, and were effective because of their richness and variety, but others, confined to two or three characters, were equally charming and effective because of their simplicity and beautiful setting.

Much care had been bestowed on the composition of the scenes, so that they should conform faithfully to the Gospel story and to the customs and manners of the age and country. The costumes gave evidence of much originality and facility, the most charming results being often obtained from the most ordinary materials, and with the simplest of devices.

Throughout the whole presentation, whether on the stage or in the audience, there was a spirit of hushed and reverent reverence, while the leading characters were held almost as by a spell of inspiration.

In a few of the scenes the traditional tableaux method of portrayal was departed from in favor of a simple dramatic action. And in "Blind Bartimaeus" and "On the Way to Emmaus," this action was very effectively and impressively done, so much so that it brought tears to many eyes.

There was a large and representative audience, of all classes and races, one object of the service being to reach thus, through the eye, many who could not otherwise be interested, because of barriers of language and tradition.

American League Notes

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 5—According to word received today from Fort Wayne, Indiana, William Wambsgans, second baseman of the Cleveland American League club, has been called to the colors and ordered to report for service at Camp Taylor, Louisville, Kentucky, on July 25.

Des Moines has lost Pitcher Paul Musser and Shortstop Bruce Hartford in the draft. Both were supposed to be the property of the Chicago White Sox under a farming agreement.

MILWAUKEE, Wisconsin, July 4—Outfielder Happy Felsch, who deserted the White Sox, is reported to have agreed to play with the Milwaukee Kosciuskos of the Lake Shore league.

DES MOINES, Iowa, July 10—Jack Coffey, veteran Western League player and manager of the local team, has signed with the Detroit Americans for the remainder of this season, and will play second base, he announced to night. The Western League disbanded Sunday.

Ban Johnson Not Disturbed

CHICAGO, July 10—B. B. Johnson, president of the American League, said Tuesday night that he was not disturbed over any break in the relations with the National League as the result of President Tener's stand.

"The contemplated resignation of President Tener occasioned me no surprise," said President Johnson. "From advice I have received the course he has taken is absolutely necessary for the welfare of baseball."

"Manager Mack of the Philadelphia club can be justified in the position he has taken. President Tener has been a party to decisions of the commission that seemed unfair and absurd to me, but I never accepted that as an excuse for declining to serve as a member of that body."

"I presume the body will find no difficulty in ably filling the position President Tener has finally determined to vacate."

CLOSE $100,000 DEAL IN RACING HORSES

NEW YORK, July 5—A sale of thoroughbreds of unusual magnitude was announced today, J. H. Rosseter of San Francisco purchasing from John E. Madden the stallion Friar Rock, together with twenty-five mares in foal to this colt of Rock and Fairy Gold. It is understood the deal necessitated an investment of about $100,000, though the actual price was not made public.

Friar Rock is the colt Madden purchased from August Belmont as a 3-year-old for $50,000 after he had won the Brooklyn and Suburban handicaps. Rosseter, who is a prominent member of the shipping board under Chairman Hurley, is a comparative newcomer in racing.

The nice round dollar donated by Mr. Stillman brings the total now on hand to $168.20. The fund is growing very slowly and it is to be hoped that the thousands of baseball fans in Honolulu will wake up and come through with their two-bit pieces or contributions of larger denomination.
